Macmillan and JFK to Talk World Disputes

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan are expected to meet soon for a wide-ranging review of world affairs in a time of change.

Western strategists still are unsure of what lies beyond what Kennedy has termed a possibly "important turning point" in East-West relations. But they are agreed on the need to have the United States and Great Britain chart their course together.

Britain and the United States are both involved in major unresolved issues on the international scene—the India-China dispute, Berlin, disarmament and the Congo.

Both American and British sources agreed Friday on the likelihood of a Kennedy-Macmillan meeting in the near future, but said an exact time and place has not yet been worked out. London informants said Macmillan expects to cross the Atlantic shortly after Christmas.

At Hyannis Port, Mass., where Kennedy is spending a long Thanksgiving weekend, assistant presidential press secretary Andrew Hatcher would say only that "it is highly probable" that the two leaders will get together "some time soon."

Meetings between the American and British government heads are comparatively frequent. Kennedy and Macmillan have gotten together five times since Kennedy took office last year, the latest occasion being a visit by Macmillan to Washington last April.

The Washington consensus is that the President and the prime minister will be surveying a scene of great and unpredictable change in world events.

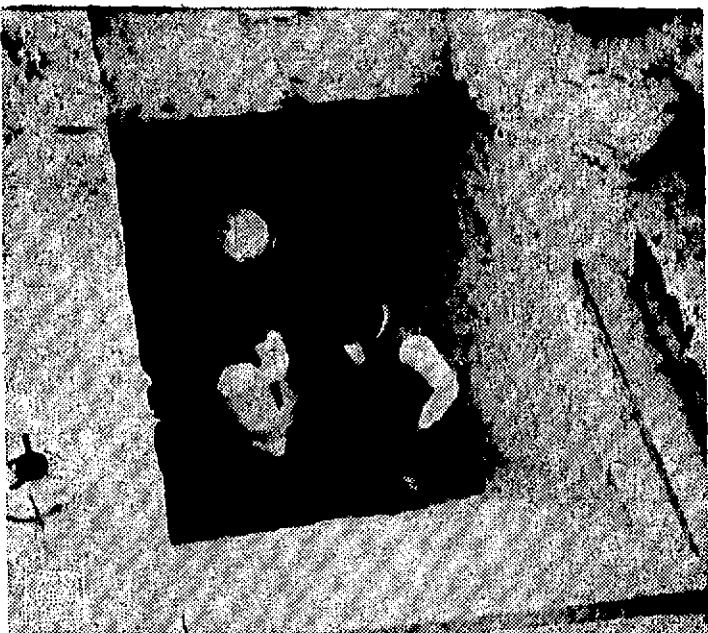

Assistant Secretary of State Harlan Cleveland, in a speech Friday night at Philadelphia, gave what aides described as a summary of U.S. government thinking on the current situation in the aftermath of the climactic U.S.-Soviet confrontation over Cuba. In words that tended to sound optimistic on future prospects, Cleveland assessed the international situation this way:

The Soviet Union has become a major world power but international communism, after having hit a peak in the immediate post-war years, has gone into decline. Externally, the Communist world has been rebuffed by Western firmness. Internally, it is so split that the idea of a solid Communist bloc has become an "antique Communist dream."

To Cleveland, who handles U.N. affairs, "the only sensible course of action for the Soviet Union" now is to seek "some live and let live formula."

U.S. and Russian negotiators are currently meeting in New York on carrying out remaining terms of the proposed Cuban settlement.

No new Western initiative for a Berlin settlement is in the offing, although U.S. officials said a wider range of negotiations with the Soviets on cold war issues is now possible. During the height of the Cuban crisis, Washington concentrated its dealings with Moscow on just that issue.

"SACRED COW"—Huge decoration from the burial couch of Tutankhamen is removed from his tomb at Luxor, during exploration of the great archaeological treasure first breached in 1922. Findings gave birth to headlines the world around, and to fashions in hair styles, cosmetics and clothing which were supposed to give the "King Tut" look.

McCaskill RCI Hears of Traveling

Members of the McCaskill RCI heard a most interesting story earlier this week when Miss Mary Ida Hollis of Little Rock, told how her dreams of traveling around the world came true as an employee of the U. S. State Department.

Having recently returned from a tour of duty at the American Embassy in Ouagadougou, capital city of the former French colony of Upper Volta in the interior of West Africa, Miss Hollis will next go to Mexico City, May 1, after studying Spanish in Washington this winter and spring.

"During previous tours of service, this attractive and proud representative of Arkansas served in Rome, Paris, Manila, Ottawa and Quebec in Canada, and in Seoul, Korea. She knows personally and has worked as secretary to many of the top diplomats of the foreign service.

Miss Hollis told her McCaskill listeners that when she was an Arkansas farm girl, living near Camden, she would sit on her front porch and dream of traveling to faraway places as she watched motorists drive by. With this in mind she studied and became an efficient stenographer who could speak French. After three years of private employment and as a file clerk in Washington during World War II, she joined the foreign service in 1945 and has since literally worked herself around the world.

Speaking of her duties in Upper Volta, she told how the foreign service personnel are working day and night to win the support for the West of the newly created independent countries in Africa.

Miss Hollis came to McCaskill at the request of a longtime friend, Mrs. J. S. Moses, program chairman for the RCI. She was a house guest in the Moses home for two days.

The annual Christmas party of the RCI will be held Tuesday, Dec. 18, with Mrs. Wilma Crawford of Hope, as a guest entertainer. She will give a Christmas reading.

RCI President Arthur Wimmell named Loy Rodgers, Mrs. R. G. Shuffield and Mrs. Leon Prescott as a nominating committee with instructions to report a slate of prospective officers at the next meeting of the club.

Race Clause in Housing Loans

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Federal Housing Administration in Washington has instructed its Arkansas state director to include an anti-discrimination clause in loan applications to carry out President Kennedy's order banning racial discrimination in federally-financed or insured home construction.

Gaither C. Johnston, the state FHA director, said at Little Rock he had received such instructions by telegram Thursday.

The telegram said that every FHA home loan application that results in a federally-insured loan must contain the clause "this commitment is subject to the requirements of the President's Executive Order relating to equal opportunity in housing, issued on November 20, 1962, and regulations and procedures to be issued thereunder."

Johnston's office processes applications for about 8,000 single and multi-family units annually but only about 65 per cent of them end with federally-insured loans.

Walker Mentally Competent

OXFORD, MISS. (AP)—A federal judge has ruled that Edwin A. Walker is mentally competent to stand trial on federal charges of seditious conspiracy and inciting an insurrection.

U.S. Dist. Judge Claude F. Clayton handed down the ruling Wednesday after a two-day hearing. He based his findings on a Dallas, Tex., mental test given the controversial former major general and his own observation of Walker's behavior in court.

But Clayton ruled first that the court order for a mental test was justified and should remain in the case record.

No trial date has been set for Walker. He was arrested and charged Oct. 1 for alleged actions during rioting at the University of Mississippi the night of Sept. 30, after Negro James H. Meredith arrived on the campus.

Soviet Plane Falls in Paris

PARIS (AP)—A Soviet plane of the Hungarian Malev airline from Budapest crashed just north of Le Bourget Airfield today, carrying all occupants to a fiery death.

The company's offices said the plane carried 17 passengers and a crew of 7 or 8. Police reports from the scene said there were no survivors.

The plane was coming in for a landing on a flight from Budapest via Frankfurt, West Germany.

Soviet Shakeup Has Divided Communists

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—A drastic shakeup of Soviet party and government organs today divided the Soviet Union's Communist world in two-city Communists and country Communists.

The object: to meet Premier Khrushchev's demands for more goods and more crops.

The Communist party's Central Committee, ending a week-long meeting in the Kremlin on Friday, ordered the sweeping measures to "correct serious shortcomings" in the economy.

A group of rising party leaders, of the generation just after Khrushchev's, emerged from the sessions as the men to make the program work.

The top-to-bottom reshuffling, one of the most thorough in Soviet history, aims also at leveling out differences between city workers and peasants.

Ever since the beginning of the revolution against the old Czarist regime, the workers who did most of the fighting have had the best of it.

By last year, the Soviet Union, once well above 80 per cent agricultural, had moved by a fraction of a per cent to the industrial side and had more city workers than farmers.

Under the new program a separate party agricultural organization split will extend from the Kremlin to the farthest outposts.

The aim is to permit those party members primarily concerned with farming to concentrate entirely in that field to get reluctant farmers to work harder and try to match European and American production.

Party members concerned with industry—and these are almost entirely in the cities—will occupy themselves with industrial and building affairs.

The reorganization struck some Western observers as a poor second choice forced upon the government and party leaders as an alternative to a much-needed capital investment program that has been made impossible by the demands of space rockets and national defense.

Two economic and production experts, Alexander P. Rudakov, and V. I. Polyakov, were made members of the Central Committee and placed in charge of the two new bureaus dealing with industrial and agricultural management.

Rudakov, 52, who heads the Industry Bureau, is a graduate of the Leningrad Mining Institute and worked in the coal and iron fields of the Donetz Basin for several years before starting up party ladder.

Polyakov, also in his early 50s, will head the agricultural wing. He is the editor of a farm magazine and, from his biographical sketches, appears never to have put his hand to a plow. After graduation from a second-level agricultural institute, he switched to journalism and for a time served as farm editor of Pravda, the Communist Party organ. He accompanied Khrushchev to the United States in 1959 as one of the correspondents invited to make the tour.

Corn Ordered for Few Counties

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Four Arkansas counties have ordered a total of 10 carloads of corn under the Department of Agriculture's feed program for areas hard hit by drought conditions last summer.

The state office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said Marion and Sebastian counties have ordered three carloads each and Sharp and Lonoke counties two carloads each.

Farmers in 20 counties are eligible to purchase the government-owned corn, but none of the remaining 16 have received enough orders yet for a carload between 1,800 and 2,000 bushels.

Cost of the corn is 75 per cent of the price support rate if the farmer is buying it to feed cattle, sheep and goats kept for breeding purposes and 100 per cent of the price support rate for other livestock. The price support rate for the corn being ordered is $1.2 a bushel.

Havana Plans to Resume Flights

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said today Cuba's domestic and international airplane flights will be resumed Saturday.

Friendly Test of Prayer Ruling

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A friend of the court brief will be filed in a case to test the constitutionality of Bible reading and reciting of the Lord's Prayer in public schools, Arkansas Atty. Gen. Frank Holt said Thursday.

Holt said he was asked to take part in the case by Thomas Finan, Maryland Atty. Gen.

The Maryland Court of Appeals said the state could maintain the practice at the beginning of each school day. The case is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court ruled last June that prayers could not be made mandatory in public schools. Arkansas law requires Bible reading daily by teachers in public schools. It says only that prayers "may be offered."

Blockade Ship Back at Base

By JIM BECKER

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—The destroyer Claud Jones, one of the Navy blockade ships, returned to its Key West base today. About 50 wives and children were on the dock waving a welcome.

One Jones officer said that the vessel was "one of the few ships in the blockade to see the coast of Cuba."

A Navy spokesman said it was the first home port ship to return since the blockade ended, although others had been in and out of the big base here, only 90 miles from Havana, during the four week blockade.

Other Key West-based blockade ships are expected to arrive over the weekend. About 13 submarines and eight destroyers from this base were involved in the blockade, Navy officers said.

Newsman were allowed on the base for the first time since the Cuban crisis erupted. They were permitted to take photographs but were asked not to interview the sailors.

Elsewhere in this hub of the south Florida military buildup during the crisis, there was no indication that the installations were being dismantled.

Soldiers manning an anti-aircraft unit at the Key West Airport were busy filling sand bags near the swimming beach, and radar units were operating.

The golf course, at a beach luxury hotel and north along the Keys were intact.

Restrictions on private airplane flights were still in effect in Key West, although they had been lifted elsewhere in Florida. The rules require a flight plan and two-way radio, and bar flights south of the 24th parallel — about halfway to Cuba.

Conservatives Lost Seats in England

LONDON (AP)—The Conservative party has lost two seats to Laborites and had close calls in winning three other traditional Tory strongholds in five special parliamentary elections.

Balloting Thursday to fill five vacancies in the House of Commons took place against a background of rising unemployment and mounting controversy over determination of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to take Britain into the European Common Market.

An impressive showing by the Liberal party—making its most vigorous attempted comeback since World War I—also cut into normal Conservative strength.

The tide began running against the Macmillan government more than a year ago after his big victory in the 1959 national election. It shows no sign of abating.

Macmillan's term runs until 1964, though under the British system he can call an election any time. There is talk that he may step down and hand over leadership of the party before that.

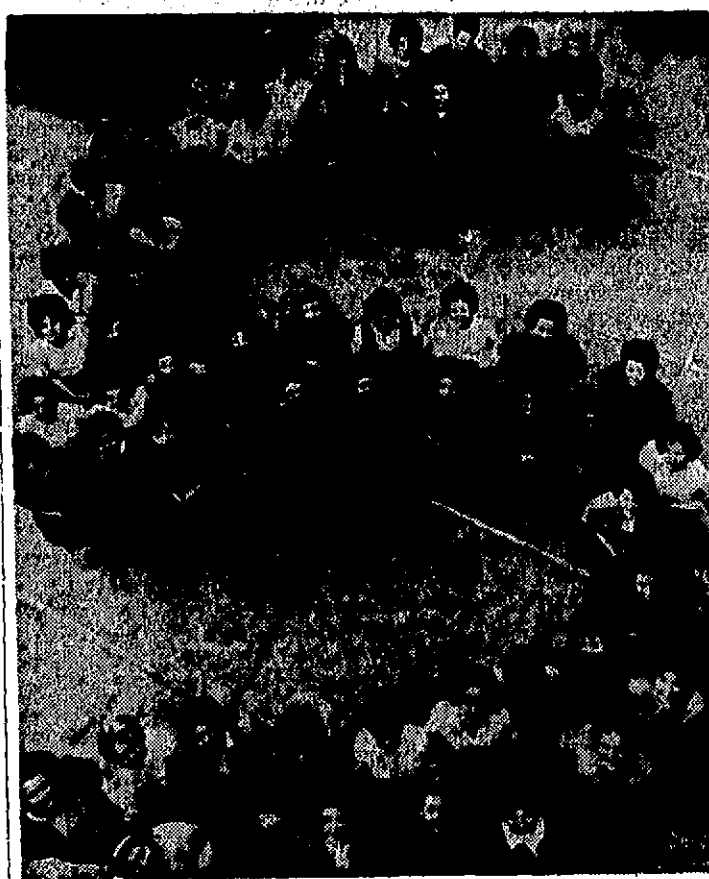

Rather Travel Than Work

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A woman who'd rather travel than work is in San Francisco after a 3,942-mile cross-country tour.

It doesn't sound unusual until you've heard that Miss Rowena Gurner, 31, of Manhattan, made the journey on a 13-year-old, 3-speed bicycle. It took her four months.

The deeply tanned woman said she crossed from Chicago via Arizona to Los Angeles, then pedaled up the coast.

Miss Gurner said she hopes to find a job as a designer in the electronics field.

8 IS FOR STEWARDESS—Students at American Airlines' college for stewardesses near Fort Worth, Tex., form an 8 as a reminder of the school's fifth anniversary this month. More than 3,000 young women have received their wings since the school opened in 1957. A recent survey of former stewardesses shows that only one out of every 47 stewardesses ends in divorce, compared with a national United States average of one marriage in four.

Auxiliary's Christmas Bazaar Is a Very Worthy Cause and Deserving of Public Support

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Besides the open market places in the Near East, what is another meaning of "bazaar"? The dictionary defines it as "a sale for some worthy purpose." That is exactly what the Christmas Bazaar on West 2nd Street is, members of the Hope Junior Auxiliary will tell you.

For the second year, the holiday season will be highlighted by unusual gifts made by Junior Auxiliary women in Hope. They will put them on sale in the building formerly occupied by Keesey's Shoe Store beginning on Monday, November 26. Chairmen of the bazaar are Mrs. William Duckett, Mrs. Robert LaGrone, Mrs. Albert Page, and Mrs. George Frazier.

Not only are the purchases going to be pleased with what they buy, but with what the money is used for, in its entirety. The revenue derived from the bazaar will be applied to a $500 scholarship offered to a Hope High graduate. Motivated by love and a desire to help others, all 27 members of this organization have worked hard to create charming gifts ranging from decorated flyswatters to hearth brooms, from mother-and-daughter aprons to rag dolls in every size and shape.

Mrs. Bill Reinhardt has been in charge of setting up the bazaar and the committees for its preparation and operation. She has probably burned some "midnight oil" while working on it, so she is apt to cast fond glances at the decorated candles shown in sizes from 2 feet to 8 inches. Marking and displaying such items as doll mirrors with faces on the back side and eyeglasses cases that seem to have eyes on them might make Mrs. Albert Graves and her committee do a "double take" at times before they are finished.

Clever piggy banks hold special charms for Mrs. Henry Seamans, chairman of the cashless committee. Publicity chairman Mrs. Dick Watkins says that the candy and cookie boxes are ideal for packaging home-made "goodies," and not to overlook the colorful baskets for large hair curlers nor so popular. Useful items also include children's mittens, gowns, and night shirts, as well as pretty Christmas towels.

With an eye for pretty things, the decoration committee, headed by Mrs. George Wright and Mrs. Forney Holl, calls attention to match boxes, bars of soap, hobby boxes, waste paper baskets, and wall plaques, all decorated beautifully. The display posters were designed and made by Barbara Reese, and the Auxiliary is grateful to her for the splendid work.

Junior Auxiliary President Mrs. James Branch and all the members of the organization invite you to come by the Christmas Bazaar beginning Monday. Shop hours from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Assumes Post With Railway

ST. LOUIS (AP)—William A. McDonnell, former chairman of the executive committee of the First National Bank of St. Louis, has assumed his new post as chairman of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. (the Frisco Railway Co.).

McDonnell resigned his chairman position with the bank, but will continue in an advisory position and as a member of the executive committee. He is a native of Altogether, Ark.

The new chairman was elected to the post Nov. 9 to fill a vacancy left by the death of Clark Hungerford.

In addition to his present post, McDonnell is a director of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., Southwest American Insurance Co. and the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

Manager of Co-op Named

HAMBURG, Ark. (AP)—Jesse J. Ogden of Hamburg, area foreman for the Ashley-Chicot Electric Co-operative, has been named manager of the Choctaw Electric Co-op in Hugo, Okla., it was announced today.

Ogden joined the Ashley-Chicot group as a lineman's helper in 1948. He has been with the co-op since except for a four-year tour of duty with the Air Force.

Ogden is a native of Snyder, Ark., and a graduate of Portland High School. He attended Arkansas A&M and Louisiana State University.

In Washington, the final messages between the plane and control tower were being prepared for intensive study by CAB experts.

Capt. Balog, the pilot, flew 35 combat missions as a B24 pilot in Europe during World War II and held the air medal with five oak leaf clusters and the distinguished flying cross. He joined Capital Airlines after his discharge in 1945 and went to United when it absorbed Capital in 1961.

Ten of the victims were employees of United, although only four were on duty in the Viscount.

Thomas Jenkins, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Baltimore, said the FBI sent a disaster squad to help identify the victims and for no other purpose.

Three hours after the crash, investigators retrieved from the smoking wreckage the flight recorder, a mechanism encased in a shatterproof steel ball. It keeps track of the planes altitude, speed and other data. The flight record was expected to play an important part in the investigation.

Deaths High When
Car Leaves Road

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Most highway deaths in Arkansas last month occurred when vehicles ran off highways, a State Police report showed Thursday.

The report said 16 people died when cars or trucks went out of control and careened off the road. Only 1 died in auto wrecks involving more than one vehicle, the report showed.

The death toll on the State's highways for the month was 42.

Eight pedestrians were killed when struck by vehicles last month, three died in car-train wrecks, three died when cars hit fixed objects and one was killed in a car-bicycle wreck.

Causes of most of the accidents were reckless driving, speeding, failure to yield right of way or drunk driving, the report said.

Thirty-one American evacuees, mostly missionary families, already have been brought to Calcutta by the Indian air force. A convoy of five autos carrying 18 persons is now reported en route, the consulate said, and between 35 and 50 persons are in Gauhati, awaiting transportation south.

The consulate estimates that 150 Americans were in Assam, reaching Calcutta reported seeing any lighting, but concern was expressed for some American technicians still unaccounted for.

Crash in Which 17 Dies Puzzles the Experts

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP)—The unaccountable crash of a United Air Lines Viscount puzzled experts today as they investigated the tangled wreckage in which 17 persons died.

All aboard perished in the crash and fire Friday of Flight 297, en route from Newark, N.J., to Atlanta, Ga., via Washington, D.C.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, Federal Aviation Agency, United and Airline Pilots Association representatives met today to organize their investigation.

The crash of the four-engine turbo-prop airliner occurred in bright sunshine about 10 miles southwest of Baltimore. Ed Slattery of the CAB said, "We are concerned because there was no weather connected with the crash."

Another piece in the puzzle was the report from the FAA that the Viscount's veteran pilot, Capt. Milton J. Balog, 39, apparently had no hint of approaching tragedy.

The FAA said radio communications with the plane as it prepared to land at Washington shortly after noon Friday were entirely routine. The FAA said Balog had acknowledged instructions only three minutes before the Viscount, capable of carrying 44 passengers, disappeared from the radar scope monitoring its approach.

Witnesses said the plane suddenly nosed sharply into wooded farmland owned by Clark Gaither in Howard County. The descent of the airplane was so steep that it cut only a small swath through the hardwood forest.

"The plane looked like it was in trouble when I first saw it," said Gaither. "Wings were fluttering and the body quivered."

"Then, just as if someone had turned it, the nose headed straight down for the woods and the airplane hit with a tremendous explosion and fire."

Joseph Fluet, chief of the accident investigation division of the CAB, who flew over the area in a helicopter, declined comment when asked about the possibility of sabotage.

Thomas Jenkins, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Baltimore, said the FBI sent a disaster squad to help identify the victims and for no other purpose.

Three hours after the crash, investigators retrieved from the smoking wreckage the flight recorder, a mechanism encased in a shatterproof steel ball. It keeps track of the planes altitude, speed and other data. The flight record was expected to play an important part in the investigation.

Frightening for All Concerned

BOSTON (AP)—It was a pretty frightening experience for all concerned—principally two lions and about 400 Bostonians.

The lions broke out of their cage in a crowded theater during a Thanksgiving Eve circus performance. During the ensuing panic it was impossible to tell who had frightened whom the most.

The crowd surged for the exits amid screams of "The lions are loose!" All fled the old Egyptian Theater in the Brighton section of Boston unharmed.

The two 500-pound cats found themselves face to face with a screaming crowd after breaking through a loose section of a barred chute.

One quickly spurred freedom, returning to its cage. The other jumped onto the back of a nearby elephant, was swatted to the ground by the pachyderm's trunk and retreated to the security of confinement.

The lions, owned by Court Nolan & Co., Trenton, N.J., were performing in an Elks Lodge circus.

Woman Observes 100th Birthday

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Ernesta Shaw—who celebrated her 100th birthday today—said she has gone through life with an unusual name because her father stuttered.

"After I was born," she explained, "my father went to the registrar's office to register my birth. He wanted to name me Henrietta, but in his nervous excitement he stuttered so much over the name that the registrar put down what he heard—Ernesta—and I've been stuck with it ever since."

Lawmakers No Good at Budgeting

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — It may delight the financially-harassed constituents of this great democracy to learn that their congressmen — reps. and dems. alike — are even less successful at family budgeting than the rest of us.

Your congressman may scream the House down, protesting national overspending and an unbalanced budget. But in his own house, he and his missus are as bemused with a buck, as spend-thrift with a salary, as poor with the planning of a budget, as the average family. In fact, slightly more so, according to a new survey, at least at Christmas.

For example: At this season of the year, one in three U. S. citizens sets a specific budget for Christmas giving. Only one in four U. S. senators and representatives thinks that far ahead, financially.

Of those congressmen who do set a budget for gift giving, 60 per cent exceed that budget. The average American has a much better ratio of living and giving within his self-imposed limit.

Republicans and Democrats in Congress spend about the same amount of money for Christmas presents for their families — But they buy fewer, more expensive gifts — an average of 20 gifts per family, compared with 30 for the average U. S. clan.

Yet the widest difference between congressman and voters is not so much in amounts spent or budgets over-shot, but in their desires for gifts.

Whereas the dominant desire of the U. S. housewife is for a fur piece under the Christmas tree, the wives of Senator Santa and Congressman Claus want most, of all things, some item of furniture for the house. They rarely get what they want.

Next highest on the list of please gimmers from congressional wives were: money, jewelry, vacations.

The average housewife puts these way at the bottom of her list. She prefers for says she does; household appliances, sweaters and sewing machine.

The revelations were the result of a survey of 100 congressmen and their families, and thousands of non-government families (made by the Chicago Printed String Co., maker of gift wrappings).

The survey revealed that, in only one respect, both Washington and the rest of the country's families were in complete accord.

Most had a strong desire to "spend less" this Christmas than they did last year. Both congressmen and constituents were particularly interested in "cutting down on the number of gifts for the children" — probably the hardest Christmas shopping fear any parents, rich or poor, can manage.

Another similarity between the U. S. representative and the representative citizen — the average congressman 2.9.

That is, whether you like it or not, equality.

Scientists have devised a better mousetrap.

In Brunswick, Germany mice have plagued the people of the farmlands for years. Fairly recently, four French-built alouette jet helicopters were sent to the area and stationed on a small airstrip there. The mice died by the score, and scientists told the pleased but half-deafened residents the answer.

The jet's screaming sound is fatal to rodents.

It is now considered the surest method of ridding a place of mice and rats. Far more effective than pesticides or cheddar.

But it's a high-frequency price to pay.

Lions Pull Upset Over Packers

By JERRY GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Coach George Wilson was perhaps clutching at straws, and well entitled to it today after the tremendous victory of his Detroit Lions over the Green Bay Packers.

"This could wake up the Rams or 49ers so they'll help us," said Wilson hopefully. "Maybe we showed them how it's done."

Forefathers Knew These Lessons

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Americans in South Viet Nam are learning some lessons their forefathers knew by heart when the Indian and white man clashed for control of the North American continent.

Doling the remote, jungle-covered highlands of central Viet Nam are hundreds of small forts and outposts, where Vietnamese troops and their American advisers base operations.

These operations are not intended to kill. They are to make friends and influence people.

Outside the posts are dark-skinned tribesmen, who dress in brilliant, hand-woven fabrics or loin clothes. They are silent, simple people, who hunt with spears and cross bows. Their arrows sometimes are tipped with deadly strychnine-based poisons extracted from native plants.

Some are fighting on the side of the Saigon forces. Some are fighting for the Vietnamese Communist rebels. Most are content to be left alone by all outsiders.

There are 700,000 of these highland mountaineers, divided into about 34 main tribal groups and dozens of sub-groups. Few of the tribes speak common languages. Only a minority speaks Vietnamese, the national language.

Yet they are the dominant inhabitants of a sparsely populated area making up about two-thirds of South Viet Nam's land area.

As such, they are key elements in the deadly war between the Viet Cong and the government, whether they like it or not.

The problem for the government is to win their allegiance and persuade them to help strangle the Communist enemy working among them.

For many years, outsiders—including the Vietnamese—have had little contact with the Montagnards, as they are called. Any contact was rarely cordial. Merchants from the lowlands selling the Montagnards cheap trinkets and beads often left cheated and embittered tribesmen behind.

Saigon forces and U.S. advisers with them are cutting into Viet Cong influence, but the work goes slowly.

The Viet Cong, realizing years ago the importance of Montagnard support in their highland campaign, has been working hard among the tribes, sometimes marrying into them to strengthen ties.

Americans and Vietnamese are learning side by side how to avoid violating important taboos. One does not enter certain parts of houses, and one does not cut wood in certain places. The spirits inhabiting certain streams must not be offended by dumping refuse into the water.

The bitter memories of the Indochina war still are reminders that the Montagnard can be a deadly enemy if he is not on your side.

The soft-spoken hunters played an important role supporting Viet Minh forces in North Viet Nam, especially in the closing months of the war at the battle of Dien Bien Phu.

Now the West is trying to avoid making the same mistake a second time.

Farm Bureau Would Trade Allotments

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation asked the Agriculture Department Tuesday to permit farmers to trade crop acreage allotments among themselves.

The request came in one of 123 resolutions adopted at closing sessions of a two-day convention.

The resolution suggested that farmer be allowed to trade, with approval of their county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Committee, cotton allotment for rice allotments and vice versa.

"With the cost-price squeeze farmers face, we feel this (trading) would enable a few farmers to obtain more economical units and maintain their purchasing power," the resolution said.

The federation called on the Arkansas Highway Department to liberalize specifications for farm-to-market roads so counties could afford to build more of them by using federal matching funds.

Members endorsed a proposal to raise maximum truck weights from 61,000 to 73,280 pounds and urged local school officials to use existing legislation to consolidate small, inefficient districts.

The Agriculture Department also was asked to increase rice acreage allotments in 1963 without reducing price supports.

The convention went on record in opposition to a number of proposals, including government controls on livestock and poultry production, any increase in Social Security taxes, federal aid to education, any increase in farm truck license fees, any form of state minimum wage law, a proposal to collect state income taxes by a withholding system and crea-

When Are Children at Their Best?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the learned discussions of parenthood is: When are children at their best?

Children themselves are fascinated by this kind of talk, as people are always interested in discussions of mankind as it used to be. Children also like to be told about how they were before they remember.

In our house we have only one child under middle-age, a daughter, Tracy Ann, who is 9 years old.

"With all the trouble and the dearness that you are now, our experience with you up till now is that you were never more responsive to our love than when we held you over our shoulder, patted you—and you burped. That was our family peak—no matter what you study in the fourth grade," we tell her.

Correction to the previous paragraph. That is what I tell my wife and daughter.

"What my wife says is: 'How can you talk that way to a child?' 'You mean her or you?' I ask.

"It is the way I feel as of now." "Well, that is no attitude you should have toward your duty of raising a child that will express our mutual desire for her to—"

"You mean," I ask, "that if we work to send her to college she will be more fun then afterward than she was when we burped her?"

"Yes," says Frances, my wife, with her usual sense of certainty. "Children are often most rewarding when they are in their teens."

"Name just two," I demand, "from Adam to Adenauer."

My wife thinks this challenge is rather ridiculous. So does my daughter, who is always on her mother's side. Perhaps we discuss our child more freely in her presence than we ought—but she is usually there.

Editor's Note: Our own opinion is that if Boyle had more than one child, he would listen to them more rather than tell them.

Boyle's Note: No matter how many they are—tell 'em now and listen to them later.

At this point my daughter, Tracy Ann, usually intervenes and

Argentina Tells of Peron Plot

By ROMAN JIMENEZ

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—The government says it has smashed a plot by an army faction of anti-Peronists to upset President Jose Maria Guido and prevent elections next June.

The government warned that supporters of the former dictator, Juan D. Peron, also planned to prevent the elections.

Security forces arrested eight alleged plotters Thursday and said further arrests were likely. A comeback by Peronists under said further arrests were likely.

Those arrested were said to fear a comeback by Peronists under Guido's plan to hold elections June 16 and restore constitutional government.

Retired army Gen. Benjamin Mendez, 78, who led an unsuccessful plot against Peron in 1956, was named as the leader of the alleged anti-election plan.

He is reported to favor the ouster of Guido and installation of a military strongman.

The government did not reveal how it had learned of the anti-election plot.

Interior Undersecretary Magno Grondona said, "two sectors are interested in that elections should not be held—the guerrillas (anti-Peronists) and Peron. They are both parasites of national hate among Argentines."

Peron, overthrown in 1955, is living in Madrid, Spain.

His supporters have been struggling to regain power.

The coup that installed Guido was precipitated by a Peronist resurgence in the March elections in which Peronists won 9 of 22 governorships and 47 of 192 seats in the House of Deputies.

Interior Minister Rodolfo Martinez said Thursday Peronists would be allowed to participate in the June elections if they campaign within the framework of the law.

Elections are to be held for president, vice president, both houses of Congress and provincial and municipal offices.

Those elected are to be installed Oct. 12 "if the situation so permits" at that time, Martinez said.

Abandoned Child Sought by Many

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—A baby girl abandoned at a Fort Smith hospital last Saturday shortly after birth is becoming a much wanted child.

Fort Smith Police Chief Bill Knox said today that he has received "quite a few" inquiries about the baby and about the procedure one must take to adopt the child.

He has also been questioned in regard to what disposition will be made in the case.

Knox said the inquiries have come from Little Rock, Fort Smith, Newport and several other Arkansas cities.

"The people seem to think I have something to do with the adoption proceedings—but I don't," he said.

Knox said if the mother cannot be found, the child would be made a ward of the court and then would become eligible for adoption.

St. Edwards Hospital Administrator Sister Maurella said the hospital has had more than 100 inquiries about adopting the child. They were referred to the Fort Smith Child Welfare Agency, which will handle the case when the baby is released.

The sister said the baby is healthy and is gaining weight at a normal rate.

Knox said his department is following all the leads it has but has no concrete possibilities on which to base a hope that the mother will be found.

"We are still checking," he said. "And we have asked the hospital not to release the baby until we complete every possible phase of our investigation."

The light-haired, blue-eyed girl was found in the doctors' coat room Saturday afternoon, clad in a diaper and a blanket.

Its Arkansas — Now Official: LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Like the Indians said, it's "Arkansaw" and now it's official.

The Arkansas attorney general issued a ruling today that the official pronunciation of the name of the state is Arkansaw.

The state legislature passed a resolution to that effect in 1981, but some people outside the state still say "Ar-Kansas."

Teen-Agers To The Rescue

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I'm furious with "Furious," the 13-year-old girl who denounced you for not going along with the very young teens on the question of make-up. I am 14, in the ninth grade and wear neither lipstick nor face powder.

My mother and some of her friends think me odd but I honestly don't feel ready for make-up. Oh, it's okay for parties and special occasions but for every day, a big "no!"

If these kids who are so crazy about make-up were to concentrate instead upon studies, I'll bet their marks would shoot up. Their immaturity disgusts me. A dip of the colors to you for standing your ground. —C.

Dear Helen: Every time I read the letters from "Furious" teens in your column I think back to the day when I thought as they do. I am 19 and by no means old-fashioned. I know so many girls like myself who started making up at 13 then wished they had waited because all the fun and excitement of wearing it soon paled.

Lipstick, rouge, powder and eyebrow pencil are for the grown-ups who really need it. Why paint the rose or gild the lily? What is there left when the big night of your first formal dance comes? The ultimate has already been tried. There is nothing left to make you more enchanting. —A Teen-ager Who Knows

Dear Helen: I am 16 and have yet to wear make-up or date. My mother would allow me to do both. Rather than grow up too fast I decided to wait. Since I've had to share family troubles since I was five, my life has not been easy. I wash, iron, mend and clean house for eight people. Everybody says I'm a better housekeeper than my aunt who is supposed to be tops.

In addition, I work week-ends to help our large family, earning all of $2 a day. Somehow I manage to do my homework too, though with my crowded schedule it's pretty hard.

Going to school is a privilege, not a chore, because until the fifth grade my attendance, due to family problems, was intermittent.

Kids who've had their education handed to them on a silver platter don't appreciate it half enough. Please tell your teen readers to do a little more reflective thinking and a little less ranting. —N.

Dear Helen: You are a stick-in-the-mud! What's wrong with a 13-year-old girl wearing lipstick? It gives color to your lips and animation to your face.

I am a 13-year-old who wears lipstick and wouldn't stop if you paid me. My lone protest won't change your stuffy thinking because you are plainly a one-track mind.

You told a girl in the sixth grade—a friend of mine—to stop chasing the boys. She wasn't. They were chasing her. You don't want us to have fun because you didn't when you were my age.

You are probably as old as Grandma Moses but won't admit it. I dare you to print this and ruin your paradise of stupid fans —Betsy Marshall, Sunnyvale Calif.

Dear Helen: Parents who approve of make-up on their little 13-year-old daughters either don't give a hoot what happens to these kids or else need a course in child-rearing. I am 18 and have yet to wear make-up but I don't lack for dates.

It's been my experience that the boys worth knowing are those who like the normal, natural, sincere girls, not the fashion plates. My parents kept me home until I was 17, when I had my first date. I love them for caring what happened to me.

Believe me, teens wouldn't be half the trouble they are if more parents laid down the law and enforced it. In our family my sisters and I are known as young people, not teen-agers. Keep on giving your sound advice to these little know-it-alls. —An Old-Fashioned Girl

Dear Helen: I am 14 and have been allowed to wear lipstick since fifth grade — but only a very pale pink. Today I use a make-up sparingly and have learned to apply it so as not to look cheap. I must admit though that after my face has been thoroughly washed and is aglow, my complexion looks better natural than with make-up.

Most folks say a shiny nose is unforgivable but I look healthier, younger and fresh-skinned when mine shines. Frankly, I think the decision to wear or not to wear make-up should lie with the girl. She will learn from experience.

—Pro and Con

Dear Helen: We are a group of girls among your faithful readers who want your opinion of 13-year-old girls who wear lipstick and heels. One of our best friends makes-up to the limit. We who wear light lipstick are troubled. Are we too young to do this? And just how old should a teenager be before—e she starts to wear heels?

—Three Concerned Teenagers, Hope, Ark.

Dear Three: The preceding letters give you a pretty good idea of my thoughts on lipstick for 13-year-olds. As for heels — Baby Louis low heels until sophomore year high.

Catholics May Set Up an Agency

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council today began discussing a proposal that the Vatican set up a permanent agency to inform and form public opinion.

A spokesman said the proposal was included in a draft thesis on "Social Means of Communication" submitted today to the 2,200 council fathers in St. Peter's. The document covers the press, radio, television, cinema and entertainment.

The spokesman said a number of speakers in today's closed session suggested an international Catholic news agency be established. This suggestion was expected to be considered as an amendment to the draft thesis.

A preparatory secretariat headed by Archbishop Martin J. O'Connor, formerly of Scranton, Pa., drafted the thesis. Archbishop O'Connor, rector of the Pontifical North American College in Rome, is president of the Commission on Cinema, Radio and Television.

The spokesman said the draft, in proposing a permanent public opinion agency, suggested this body could be either an entirely new one or an enlarged version of Archbishop O'Connor's commission.

Speakers at today's session, the spokesman said, "indicated repeated agreement to proposals contained in the project for the institution" of an office "which will have the task of creating an efficient organization—first of all international, then national, and finally diocesan—of communications media for the purpose of informing and forming public opinion."

No other ecumenical council has ever discussed mass communications. Radio and television did not exist when the last council met 92 years ago.

Campaign Starts

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Numismatic Society has started a campaign to raise $1,000 to build display cases for a collection of Confederate money worth $50,000 which was given the state last November by Harry B. Solomon of Memphis. The exhibit will be at the Old State House here.

Mississippi Likely Foe for Porkers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The 1963 Sugar Bowl Classic loomed today as another Southeastern Conference-Southwest Conference clash between Arkansas and undefeated Mississippi.

The Razorbacks accepted an invitation Thursday to return here Jan. 1 for another try, after Texas clinched the SWC crown and a place in the Cotton Bowl.

Arkansas, with an 8-1 record this year, closes its campaign Saturday against Texas Tech. The Razorbacks lost to defending national champion Alabama 10-3 here in the 1962 Sugar Bowl game.

Mississippi must wait until after its Dec. 1 finale against arch-foe Mississippi State at Oxford to announce acceptance of a bowl invitation.

Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles accepted the Sugar Bowl bid. Earlier this week, Broyles had said that Arkansas players preferred the Sugar Bowl if they did not receive the Cotton Bowl berth.

Despite its fine record, this marks the first time in four years that Arkansas has not either won or tied for the SWC title.

Arkansas, paced by quarterback Billy Moore, ranks seventh in the latest Associated Press poll. The Rebels, winners of eight straight, stand second in the weekly ratings.

In Fayetteville, Ark., Broyles said he looked forward to meeting Ole Miss, a regular season foe of Arkansas until this season. "It ought to be a whale of a game," he said.

Pointers have generally overshadowed setters in field trials the last 20 years. Tyson's Palamoniom Mike had five finds, but his hunting race did not compare with Wonsover's, and Mike finished second.

Free for All Spoils Prep Grid Game

WASHINGTON (AP) - A massive free-for-all engulfed thousands of spectators and churned through a five block area after the city's Thanksgiving Day prep football championship.

For an hour the battlers—mostly teenagers in a crowd of 50,000 at District Stadium—fought each other and 100 police.

Two policemen and their K9 corps dogs were overrun, kicked and mauled by a mob.

One of the dogs, its handler reported, was bitten on the left leg by a youngster during a wild scramble.

But the officers said they hung on to the dogs' leashes rather than turn them loose on the teenagers.

At least 38 persons reported injuries. But officials said scores more nursed black eyes, swollen jaws and similar wounds.

Police said they took about a dozen into custody.

The battle royal was apparently kindled by a fight between players on the field shortly before the end of the game between St. John's College High School and Eastern High. St. John's won 20 to 6.

Eastern is a predominantly Negro school and most of St. John's students are white.

Deputy Police Chief George R. Walcott said he didn't consider the fighting a racial flareup but some other officials thought it was partly involved.

Officials Talk Over Cuba Crisis

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
 HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) - President Kennedy and a team of advisers probed into the Cuban crisis today at a conference over coffee cups.

Budget Director David Bell also arrived at the Kennedy home overlooking Nantucket Sound for Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr., for a separate conference, to explore on a dime and dollars basis some of the items that will go into next year's federal spending program.

Three planes brought in members of the executive committee of the National Security Council for the review of the Cuban issue. There was some shifting in the lineup.

Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, did not make the meeting. He was reported to be in South Carolina. Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr., former ambassador to Moscow and now U.S. ambassador at large, was an addition. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy also sat in.

At the United Nations, competent sources reported that the United States and Soviet Union are considering a declaration designed to end the Cuban crisis.

The Soviets proposed it. This country reportedly was objecting to some provisions, mainly one that it agreed to talk with Cuba about pulling out of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo.

John J. McCloy, chairman of the U.S. Cuban coordinating committee, was among the conferees at Kennedy's summer home here on Cape Cod. Without explanation, he said on his arrival that Stevenson would not be present.

The others in attendance: Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Undersecretary George Ball; Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Deputy Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatric; Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; and McGeorge Bundy, presidential adviser on national security.

Looking not at all as if she had spent a dreadful night of suspense, she led the way down to her office.

Sam Jones was waiting in her office, which, when they entered it, was a bit crowded. She tossed the jewels to Jones.

"Get rid of them," she directed. "Reward" he asked.

"If there is one," she said without interest, "give it to the Community Chest. Have you seen the morning paper?"

He handed her a folded copy, to which she gave her attention. There was, as she had hoped, a follow-up story about the meat-packing plant and, by Maxine Swan, a feature story about Miss Stubblefield and how, at last, she had parted with a piece of the family real estate. There was an interview with Lucius Quentin, who used words like "outrage" and "injunction" and seemed to be in a state of mind.

"All right," Sam said. "You have brought him to a boil. What next?"

"Let him continue," Columbine said, "to stew in his own juice."

"How elegant!" Barbara Green exclaimed.

"It is," replied Columbine pedantically, "the inelegancies of the vulgar which enrich our language."

The highway patrolman, a nice young man with Methodist upbringing, was inexpressibly shocked by the sight of the impious chapel, more shocked than by the sight of Pastor Martinus with a knife in his back and Professor Thumb with crushed ribs.

Thumb still breathed painfully. Sam Jones picked up Columbine and carried her to the car, where he plopped her down on the back seat. "You're lucky," he growled, "that nothing is lacerated but your feet."

She scowled as she looked up at him and said crisply, "My feet are none of your business. You are my lawyer, not my chiropodist."

Barbara Green sat beside Columbine. "What billing and cooing!" she exclaimed dryly.

"What," asked Madame Thistlebun, "set those two gangsters to fighting? Were they squabbling over you?"

"Oh, no," said Columbine, surprised at such an assumption. "Oh, no, indeed. They were not in the least interested in me. Except as—as a victim."

"Well, in that getup," Madame said critically, "you're not such a dish. What was it, then?"

"It was a shock to them to find your jewels were not real," Columbine said. "The professor was reluctant to believe it. He was suspicious of Pastor Martinus. He thought the pastor was—was thimble-rigging him. And so it seemed a practical and efficient idea to sow additional seeds of suspicion."

"Which you did? And how?" "Well, there was the original—"

"She sought for a word. The original swag. That $40,000 worth of gems which I abstracted the other day from their hiding place in the altar. I called attention, and the professor investigated. When he found nothing but pebbles, he attacked Martinus."

They reached the thoroughfare, stopped at a gas station and did necessary telephoning; then they drove on to the hotel.

Madame and Barbara Green escorted her to her apartment, drew hot water in the tub and saw that Columbine got into it. Barbara called the kitchen for food. Columbine luxuriated. When she emerged, Barbara had laid out on the bed one of Columbine's more attractive ensembles.

"To remove any false impressions," she said, "if you'd stand for it, I'd deck you out in a Bikini. That would make the lad forget that you looked like what the nonfastidious cat dragged in this morning."

"My interest in Mr. Jones' impression of me," Columbine said, "is negligible if not non-existent."

"Barbara raised her eyes at Madame Thistlebun. "She is in a bad way."

Looking not at all as if she had spent a dreadful night of suspense, she led the way down to her office.

Sam Jones was waiting in her office, which, when they entered it, was a bit crowded. She tossed the jewels to Jones.

"Let him continue," Columbine said, "to stew in his own juice."

"How elegant!" Barbara Green exclaimed.

"It is," replied Columbine pedantically, "the inelegancies of the vulgar which enrich our language."

"It is published here," Sam said, pointing to the paper, "that the option to purchase is in my name."

"Therefore," Columbine said, "rity affairs."

Another presidential assistant, Theodore C. Sorensen, also sat in for a time.

"Mr. Quentin will be contacting you," she frowned. "I detest that lord in that connection. The vocabulary of the world of business is made up of stupid clichés."

"And when," Sam Jones asked, "this man clichés me, what do I respond?"

"You will," Columbine said, "make an engagement with him, and notify me."

"Yes, ma'am. Thank you, ma'am," Sam said, tugging at his forehead. "Where upon you will take over?"

"Whereupon," Columbine said, "I will instruct you further."

"For this," he said, "I studied law and was admitted to the bar."

"I," said Columbine, "have matters here that require my attention. Doubtless your office requires your presence. I'm greatly obliged to you, Mr. Jones. Good morning."

It was not until the next morning that Columbine heard from her lawyer. He had made an appointment to receive Lucius Quentin in his office at 2 o'clock that afternoon.

"I will arrive," Columbine told him, "at 1:30 to apprise you of the inner meaning of what is taking place."

Barbara drove her to the Security Building and accompanied her to Sam Jones' office. Sam received them at once. They seated themselves and, after a brief but awkward pause, Sam asked, "and now, what does the spider say to the fly, when he arrives?"

"You," said Columbine, "are noncommittal."

"And then?" "Doubtless he will bluster. You will remain mute. Let him bluster until—until he runs out of soap."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then," she said, "you may ask him what he has in mind."

"Does he tell me?" "Oh, without doubt. He will tell you how a packing house there will ruin his hotel. He will talk about suing to abate a nuisance."

"I follow you so far."

"He will then," Columbine said, "ask you to set a price on the property. At which you will laugh scornfully."

"Talleyrand couldn't negotiate better," he said.

"At any rate," she went on, "a moment will arrive when he will be compelled to make a definite offer."

Is The Lord Our God

Be Ye Thankful

The human is at his best when he prays... when he reaches up to the Divine. That's when time becomes part of eternity.

As when the pilgrims were struggling to make a go of it and even more so, we need to pause, take stock and thank God. Gratitude is a high virtue. Our cause to praise God is great. Our fathers bequeathed us rich land, good example and sustaining ideals. We must not inherit one without the other. The generous harvest of every year is ours and His. And His is the larger part for God has always been at work. What have we done to merit such blessing? We should join the call to worship this Thanksgiving Day, in the church of our choice... Consider why we should prosper as no other people on earth, fall on our knees and speak loud our thanks to the God of all. Your own soul will be aglow and your Thanksgiving dinner will have more taste if you will first remember Him, and if you will feed and clothe some other person, in His Name. This stimulating fellowship with God and our fellows could make this our greatest Thanksgiving Day. Then, "Come, ye Thankful people, come, and raise the song of Thanksgiving."
